

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An explosion protection venting system has a plurality of vessels or reactors connected by a common vent line. A flame front diverter having a pair of opposing rupturable discs is connected to each one of a plurality of vessels for 5 directing a deflagration away from the normal flow path and through an alternate path that prevents damage to nearby structure.